PERSONALITY TYPE

THE SUPERVISOR

You are a hardworking traditionalist, eager to take charge in organizing projects and people. Orderly, rule-abiding, and conscientious, you like to get things done, and tend to go about projects in a systematic, methodical way.

STRENGTHS

Organization and efficiency - You are a planner and list-maker—orderly and scheduled. Your brain naturally imposes structure on your life and time.

Dedication and commitment - No one could accuse you of shirking, and it's natural for you to give 110 percent in all areas of life and exhibit boundless energy as you do.

Integrity - You demonstrate consistent integrity in roles of leadership, believing the rules apply as much to them as their subordinates.

Stewardship - You are the person who feels personally responsible for upholding the standard and formulating a very clear picture of what passes and what doesn't. On the home front, you are committed to family and desire to provide well for anyone you consider to be under your care.

WEAKNESSES

Judgmental - A black and white approach to life can be a significant pitfall for you. While you are commendably committed to your beliefs, you often forget that all of the principles you espouse are neither universal nor objective, and the traditional, time-honoured way isn't the only way.

Uncomfortable with emotions - You often fail to value emotions or take feelings into account—your own and others’—and this can make you appear harsh, abrasive, utilitarian and uncaring.

Workaholism - While your work ethic is to be commended, you can also err on the side of workaholism and perfectionism.

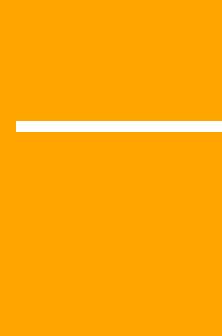

Stubborn and inflexible - You are committed to your own way or perspective as objectively right, and this can impede the process of personal growth. In fact, you are often so firmly planted in your original belief, as well as your own rightness, that you fail to acknowledge new or conflicting information that would lead to an altered and perhaps truer conclusion.
