PERSONALITY TYPE

THE PERFORMER

You are a vivacious entertainer who charms and engages those around you. You are spontaneous, energetic, and fun-loving, and take pleasure in the things around you: food, clothes, nature, animals, and especially people.

STRENGTHS

Showmanship - You have lively personalities which you use to liven up every room you occupy. Bringing smiles and enjoyment to others gives you greater satisfaction than anything else in the world.

Supportive - You like to be the centre of attention, but also prize the spirit of cooperation and never try to hog the spotlight when asked to work on group projects.

Positivity - You are the quintessential positive thinker, firmly believing the bright side is the only one worth looking at.

Bold and practical - Because you refuse to live in the past or the future, or get distracted by dreams or fantasies about the way the world should be, you are high-quality practical worker who never sacrifice their determination to accomplish remarkable things in the present moment.

WEAKNESSES

Avoid conflict - The one problem with “glass half full” types is that you will sometimes deny unpleasant truths or avoid uncomfortable situations if you feel it might cast a dark cloud.

Sensitive - It is ironic given your tendency to showmanship and outspokenness, but you are extremely sensitive and can be deeply hurt when others criticize your ideas, personalities or conduct.

Easily bored - With a need for constant excitement, you find it hard to maintain your focus on the topic at hand; often demonstrating the sort of attention span normally seen only in kindergarten classrooms.

Poor long term focus - When given the choice between theory and proven practice, you will choose the latter every time.
