PERSONALITY TYPE

THE DYNAMO

You are an energetic thrill seeker who is at the best when putting out fires, whether literal or metaphorical. You bring a sense of dynamic energy to your interactions with others and the world around you. You assess situations quickly and move adeptly to respond to immediate problems with practical solutions.

STRENGTHS

Can-do attitude - No one will ever call you lazy or uncertain, and this very self-assured, can-do approach to life and work is certainly a strength.

Bold - You also abound in mental toughness and a sense of competition that makes you relentless in pursuing what you are after. They respond well to your physical environment and know how to manoeuvre the world.

Personable and sociable - You are people-focused and get along well with just about anyone. You are observant and perceptive, and read people well. This has the benefit of helping others to feel that they are cared about because you pay attention and respond appropriately.

Direct - You are efficient, a matter of fact, direct and to the point. You don't mince words or want to spend a lot of time hemming and hawing.

WEAKNESSES

Judgmental - While your powers of perception and observation are often seen as strengths, it may also mean you are quick to prejudge situations and people, and to categorize them based upon initial perceptions.

Impatient - Because you are quick thinkers and doers, you easily become impatient with those who process at a slower pace than you do, who lack their capacity for common sense or street smarts or who tend to be more sensitive or emotional.

Unstructured - You tend to live in a state of urgency and emergency because you do very little advance planning. Though you may be comfortable with this pattern of living, it breeds chaos for everyone around you.

Commitment phobic - You hate to be bored and want life to always be new, stimulating and interesting. The reality, however, is that life is often not interesting or novel and relationships can get a little dull at certain points.
